New Discovery Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Skin Diseases

Nothing in the history of medicine has ever approached the success of the small, decorated ones for the children. marvelous skin remedy known as poslam, which, it is safe to say, has cured busy disposing of them upon the back more cases of eczema and skin diseases than any remedy ever offered who for some misdemeanor had been for these ills.

The success of poslam is not at all surprising when it is considered that even a very small quantity applied to the skin stops itching immediately and cures chronic cases in two weeks. The very worst cases of eczema, as well as acne, herpes, tetter, piles, salt rheum, rash, crusted humors, scaly scalp and every form of itch, yield to it readily. Plemishes such as pimples, red noses, muddy and inflamed skin disappear almost immediately when poslam is applied, the complexion being cleared over-night.

Table was four years old and had been attending a Sunday school for several-weeks past, and in the school she learned a number of texts. She stood by the window watching the others make merry until her longing was too much for childish patience. So she walked over to the table, reached out her hand and solemnly repeated, "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Then a little fist closed firmly upon the largest, finest cake.—

Every druggist keeps both the 50-cent size (for minor troubles) and the $2 jar, and either of these may be ob-tained in Bridgeport at Jennie Hamil-ton's Pharmacy as well as other reliable drug stores.

But no one is even asked to purchase poslam without first obtaining an experimental package which will be sent by mail, free of charge, upon request, by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York

Stapleton started, looking straight at me in surprise. "Yes," I went on. "I mean what I've said, Mr. Stapleton. He has lied to you concerning Granny Gough. And threatened to expose his calumnies to you if he did not leave the Grange to-night. Already you have seen the effect of my words!"

"But is this true, Philip?" the old gentleman asked, bending toward me, At that moment the butler entered. but, turning quickly to the man, he remarked that we wanted nothing The servant understood, and, bowling, withdrew, closing the door after him "Is this really true?" he repeated.

"Look here. Mr. Stapleton." I said, firmly, placing my cigarette end in the ash tray, "that man, who poses as your friend, came here with a distinct purpose—to malign Gough. He has told Myra, and probably yourself, some very wonderful tales, declaring that my friend Granny is not only an adventurer, but also an assassin. Now I have known Gough for many years, and a straighter and more honorable fellow never breathed. Therefore the fellow is a liar. This morning I met him alone down by the river, and spoke out straight. I demanded that should withdraw all his vile calumnies and leave the Grange. Otherwise

Should I reveal the truth of what had passed in Bucharest? I hesitated. Next second, however, I saw that for the present it was a judicious policy to remain silent. I had no desire that Garshore should be aware of the exact extent of my knowledge. "That he was telling you untruths," was my rather lame reply. Stapleton grunted in dissatisfaction.

"H'm! You don't seem to like Garshore, Philip," he said. "No. I don't, and that's the plain

"She's madly in love with your friend Gough."

"Well! Her love is reciprocated, and that very warmly," I assured him.
"But if half what Garshore has said is correct he is surely not a fitting companion for her!" "I admit that. But Garshore, for some mysterious purpose of his own, came here to lie," I said. "Again, for what reason has he so suddenly left you, without even returning for his traps, if not because he feared to again face me?"

"He received a telegram at the York post office."

'Was not that a curious coincidence?" I asked. "Why was the wire not addressed here?" "He may have ordered it to be sent to York, as he knew last night we were going over there."

I smiled incredulously, saying: "I think, Mr. Stapleton, that my theory is the correct one. Did you see him off?" "No, he would not allow us to do so,

We were due at the flower show." That was exactly what I had expected. The telegram was a mere excuse to leave them, and he had gone
